Scope of work

In today's digital-first landscape, a brand's website is often its most powerful touchpoint, shaping perception, trust, and engagement. For Intex, a strong, future-ready web presence is essential to stay competitive in an increasingly dynamic and cluttered market. Consumers now expect seamless navigation, intuitive design, and meaningful interactions across devices. A well-developed website not only enhances brand credibility but also drives conversions, customer retention, and long-term growth. Investing in a robust digital platform is no longer optional, it is a strategic necessity for sustained market relevance.

PROCESS

In order to build a high-performing website we need, CD+D will walk through the following process with the Paras Dairy team.

Goals

Firstly, we'll work together to establish goals for the website and how they fit into the wider organisational goals.

Discovery

Once we've established the goals of the website, we'll then work to identify where the opportunities lie. This can involve some or all of the following:

Scope of work

Data analysis - We'll look at existing website data, including traffic sources, landing pages, conversion rates etc. to understand where the biggest opportunities lie for improving the existing website.

Customer interviews - We'll conduct interviews with your customers to understand how customers use the product, what they were using previously, what problems it solves for them, etc. This will help us write copy that resonates with your audience and the products they are looking for.

Internal interviews - We'll interview a number of internal people at Paras Dairy to understand how the wider business works and how we engage with the customer across their lifecycle. This will allow us to understand how best to convert people from a visitor to your website to a loyal customer.

Strategy

Once we've completed the discovery phase, we'll then come up with an overarching strategy for your website.

This will include information like what pages we'll have, how navigation will work, visual style, conversion paths, etc.

This strategy will be driven by the insights gained from the Discovery stage, and will leverage our deep knowledge of this space and website design best practices.

We'll present this strategy back to you for review, iteration & approval.

Scope of work

Wireframing

Once the strategy is agreed on, we'll then do a basic wireframe of your new website that will show the navigation, page layouts, copy, etc.

This will allow you to understand how the site will look and what messages will be conveyed, and will allow us to iterate quickly until everyone is aligned.

Design

Once the wireframe is agreed on, we'll then turn the wireframe into a high- fidelity design that shows exactly how each page of the website will look.

We will present this back to you as an interactive prototype that will allow you to click through the website and experience it as if it was live. We'll then iterate and make any final changes in this stage before signing off and beginning development.

Development

Once the design has been agree on and signed off, we'll then develop the website on the core PHP, developing CMS limited to news, blog and career sections. We use bootstrap design for better UI/UX and thus refrain ourself from using any specific CMS.

Scope of work

Signoff, launch and training

Once the website is built, we'll jump on a video call and walk you through the new website. Once you've signed off on it, we'll push it live at parasdairy.com and archive your old website in case you need anything from it.

Finally, we'll do a basic training session with your marketing team so they understand how to edit the website when they need.

DELIVERABLES

As outlined in the Process section, CC will be responsible for delivering the following:

- Website strategy document that outlines navigation, key pages, visual style, etc.
- Wireframes for the new website to be reviewed, iterated and agreed
- Full designs for the new website to be reviewed, iterated and agreed
- Final, mobile-responsive website live at parasdairy.com

It's also worth noting what is outside the scope of this project:

- Optimisation for Search Engines.
- Submission to Search Engines.
- Design of other branding assets such as logos.
